Summary Report

The General Assembly Third Committee held its annual session to consider the following agenda items:

I. Development and the Rights of Indigenous Peoples
II. The Right to Privacy in the Digital Age
III. Eliminating Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerances

The session was attended by representatives of 166 Member States, and 2 observers. The first session opened with several statements concerning the adoption of the agenda. On Sunday, the committee adopted the agenda of III, I, II beginning discussion on the topic of “Eliminating Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerances.”

By Tuesday afternoon, the Dais received over 20 working papers with diverse topics such as education, religious tolerance, and discrimination against minorities. The committee proceeded to debate in an atmosphere of collaboration and cooperation. At the end of the day, many papers were merged according to the similarity of the topics covered in them.

By Wednesday morning, the committee had successfully merged their working papers, and the Dais received a total of 11 proposals covering a wide range of sub-topics such as: participation, short term actions, human security, economic impact of migrants, agriculture and sustainable development, education for the eradication of discrimination, sister cities, promoting religious tolerance and genocide prevention.

On Wednesday, 11 draft resolutions had been approved by the Dais, five of which had amendments. The committee adopted all resolutions following voting procedure, none of which received unanimous support by the body. The resolutions represented a wide range of issues from education to comprehensive migration solutions to cultural awareness. There was broad agreement on most resolutions the body passed in continuation of the collaborative nature of the work which lead to a large number of merged working papers.

Committee: General Assembly Third Committee
Topic: Eliminating Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia, and Related Intolerances

The General Assembly Third Committee,

Guided by Article 1.3 of the Charter of the United Nations, as it encourages the promotion and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion,

Reaffirming that all rights established within the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) are not to be denied on the basis of race, gender, ethnicity, or culture as specified in Article 2 of the UDHR,

Acknowledging the work of the European Network against Racism (ENAR) in providing a platform for discussion including best practices in psychological assistance for victims of discrimination throughout Europe,

Having examined Article 26 of the UDHR as it affords the right to education to all peoples while promoting understanding, tolerance and friendship,

Calling attention to all relevant national constitutions in their protection of all ethnic, racial, and religious groups, and recognizing the responsibility of Member States to provide for protections for groups that face discrimination in their borders,

Noting with satisfaction the information gathered from the 2014 World Economic Forum which illustrates the necessity of matching skills to specific labor markets,

Recalling the Millennium Declaration, especially Article 19, which highlights the link between increased access to education at all levels and reduction of poverty, while strengthening the capacity of Member States to respect human rights, including minority rights,

Emphasizing Article 3 of the United Nations (UN) Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination which calls for the prevention of discrimination based on race, color, or ethnic origin, especially in civil rights, education, and religion,

Highlighting the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, specifically Article 5, as recognizes the rights of all peoples to education and training without distinction as to race, color, or national or ethnic origin,

Cognizant of the Dakar Framework for Action, as it outlined the Education for All Goals that aim to ensure all children, especially the most vulnerable and disadvantaged, have access to and receive a quality education,

Deeply concerned that education systems may be used to perpetuate negative stereotypes of ethnic groups when curriculum include materials that contribute to demeaning certain groups of society according to Human Rights Council Resolution 23/56,

Recalling A/RES/65/312 as it outlines the important role youth play in decision making and the need for dialogue that promotes youth involvement that influences their social or economic position and the well-being and livelihood of future generations, Recognizing the success of the International Organization for Migration (IOM) Assisted Voluntary Return and Reintegration programs have had in...

Viewing with appreciation the efforts of UN Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) Slave Route Project in overcoming cultural ignorance of the history and influence of slavery and adding in the development and preservation of cultural heritage,

Realizing the positive influence of youth focused cross-cultural extra-curricular programs as tolerance building amongst adolescents, such as UNESCO’s Youth Voices Against Racism, which improved youth participation in anti-discrimination policies in 2008,

Cognizant of the measures put forth in the Office of the High Commissioner of Human Rights (OHCHR) Database on practical means to combat racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances,

Drawing attention to A/RES/65/4 that recognizes sport as a means to promote education, health, development and peace,

Keeping in mind A/RES/68/9 that promotes sport for peace and development, especially through the Olympic ideal,

Recognizing the mandate of the UN Youth Envoy on Youth as working with relevant UN agencies, governments, civil society, academia, and media stakeholders toward enhancing, empowering and strengthening the position of young people within and outside the UN System,

Deeply regretting the recent attacks occurred in January 2015 in Paris during which 20 people were killed because of religious differences,

Guided by the affirmations of A/RES/69/162 and expanding upon it through collaboration with the Human Rights Council on the reports of the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance of the Human Rights Council and the United Nations Secretary General,

Keeping in mind that more than 150 million people live outside their countries of origin as migrants or refugees who may be highly vulnerable to racism, xenophobia, and discrimination,

Recalling Article 16 of the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families, as it stipulates that migrants have the right to liberty and security of person,

Reaffirming the importance of recognition for people of African descent through the implementation of education and cultural rights, as noted in A/RES/69/318,

Noting the success of existing UN programs and initiatives focused on increasing access to quality education, including the UN Children’s Fund (UNICEF) Child-Friendly School Program, various UN Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and UN Alliance of Civilizations (UNAOC) programs,

Recognizing the UNESCO World Report on Investing in Cultural Diversity and Intercultural Dialogue which states that policy in the field of education can have a strong influence on cultural diversity and the acceptance of it,

Cognizant of the current status of the Trust Fund for the Programme for the Decade for Action to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination and calling for more cooperation from Member States, Further recalling A/RES/69/16 that requests Member States and relevant human rights bodies, organs and mechanisms of the United Nations, specialized agencies, funds and programmes, international, regional, subregional and non-governmental organizations to develop and implement specific action-oriented activities for the International Decade for the People of African Descent which began in January of 2015,

Highlighting the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, specifically Article 69, as it calls for the reform of and training for Member States’ security sector as a means to improve the protection of human rights of all peoples, Acknowledging the right of all peoples to an adequate standard of living, including the highest attainment of physical and mental health, as called for in Article 12 of the International Convention of Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights,

Recalling the 2005 World Summit Outcome as it highlighted the need for policies and procedures that prevent and eliminate discrimination of all forms in Member States,

Reaffirming Article 15 of the UDHR which grants everyone a right to a nationality,

Recognizing the need to affirm the International Labor Organization (ILO) C122 Article 1.3 to extend to all minority groups to promote their development and aid in using empowerment as a tool to foster inclusion and erode discrimination and disenfranchisement,

Understanding that the UN Voluntary Fund For Indigenous Peoples was created to protect fundamental human rights in indigenous populations and is funded voluntarily by willing Member States, non-governmental organizations (NGO), and other private entities,

Noting that the Global Economic Symposium states there are over 1.3 billion minorities worldwide with no access to affordable health care or services despite efforts through the Millennium Development Goals,

Aware of Article 2 of the International Covenant on Economic Social and Cultural Rights, as it states all the economic rights of the covenant to be executed without discrimination,

Viewing with appreciation the efforts taken by the United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) to collaborate with permanent missions and civil society in order to promote democracy, tolerance and equality through education,

Recalling Chapter 36 of the Earth Summit Agenda 21 which states that education is pertinent to reducing poverty and promoting sustainable economies,

Reminding all Member States who are party to the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination of their requirement to condemn racial discrimination, and pursue a policy of elimination racial discrimination in all its forms including bringing to an end, including by legislative means, racial discrimination by any persons, groups or organizations,

Further noting that the International Expert meeting on Indigenous Peoples and Forests 2011 Report states that discrimination against indigenous people has led to denial of land rights,

Fully aware that eliminating racism, xenophobia and other related intolerances is more than an international issue, and should be recognized by individual Member States, as Spain has done through the Spanish Observatory of Racism and Xenophobia,

Acknowledging the success of national frameworks and action plans like the National Reconciliation Program in Togo, which increased political participation of underrepresented ethnic groups and facilitated discussion between the government and other relevant actors,

Acknowledging the success of Kenya's National Commission on Human Rights, and understanding that states have the duty to protect and promote the human rights and fundamental freedoms of political participation of all people regardless of race, religion, or any other form of discrimination,

Recognizing the role of the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances as transmitting urgent appeals and communications to states on alleged violations of contemporary racism, discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances, undertaking fact-finding country visits, and submitting annual reports to the Human Rights Council and the General Assembly on their activities,
1. Reaffirms the ideals put in place by the International Convention to End all forms of Racial Discrimination, in hopes of eliminating acts of racial discrimination and Xenophobia within Member States;

2. Welcomes a more efficient collaboration between the Committee on The Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD) and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) such as the ones encompassed in the ENAR in order to enhance the work done by Education For, About, and From Discriminated Groups Program (EFADGP), as it is a good measure to address the issue at hand, which is consists in the following:

   a. the improvement of the current situation of the minority group given the fact that they lack access to education,

38. Supports the establishment of the Widespread Effective Loan Coordination to Offset Minority Exclusion Initiative (WELCOME) as a partnership between regional banks and the International Labor Organization’s Better Work Program to promote integration and development of minority workers by:

a. Providing assessments on minority development and economic impact within the private sector,

b. Encouraging an increase in opportunities for minority employment through advocacy and vocational training as done in UNESCO’s Technical and Vocational Education and Training Program,

c. Reducing exclusion rates of minority groups that experience the lowest growth and development through targeted micro-loan private sector stimulation,

d. Granting microloans to business owners and entrepreneurs who belong to at-risk minority populations through a process similar to the UNDP’s Microfinance Project, providing small-scale grants and loans to small private business owners, via BRAC, FINCA, ADB, and other banks supporting the elimination of poverty for minorities and willing regional banks,

e. Utilizing previously established application procedures for loans similar to that of the UND microfinance programs;

39. Calls for increased awareness of the opportunities provided for indigenous peoples’ groups through the UN Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Peoples, including grants to enable these peoples to participate in various functions of the UN, including the HRC;

40. Welcomes collaboration between the World Health Organization (WHO) and NGOs, such as the Education and Health Nepal, aimed at providing a culturally sensitive approach to healthcare in isolated locations for highly marginalized rural populations in order to increase the standard of living of all peoples by educating local populations on modern medicine and healthcare practices in a culturally sensitive way;

41. Encourages the use of the WHO Urban Health Equity Assessment and Response Tool (UrbanHEART), an assessment tool that provides Member States the necessary information regarding inequities among minorities regarding health care, in addition to providing state specific recommendations to address this;

42. Recommends a partnership between UN Institute for Training and Research and the UN Department of Legal Affairs to develop policy models that works to improve, national legal and policy systems in order to eliminate and prohibit discrimination based on race, ethnicity, nationality, religion or related qualities;

43. Further invites Member States to take actions in order to not only implement the existing documents that have been ratified and yet not applied, but also to ratify the Conventions they have not currently ratified, through:

   a. the creation and implementation of an International Guideline that wishes to encourage representatives in concern to adopt and exercise existing national legal framework in the most responsible way,

   b. the development of the Our Current Protection document by every Member States through the Ministry of International Affairs, in order to:

      i. determine which conventions have been already ratified by each country,

      ii. develop a record and work along with the International Guideline, in order to urge Member States to ratify the conventions not yet ratified;

   c. inviting Member States to apply in their respective countries the C-FON Programme (Capacitation for Our Nation Programme) through which workshops will be provided to important representative figures, such as Judges, policemen, and representatives of the Administrative system, for them to acknowledge the existence of the ratified conventions in order to implement them efficiently on a national level within the concerned cases;

   d. a recommendation to the Economic and Social Council that its reporting NGOs promote existing campaigns to emphasize transparency, by a connection between the big communication corporations and civil society organizations, in order to create awareness towards the fact that it is nearly impossible to not have any form of discrimination in our nations, in this way condemning the fact that many countries ratify conventions but do not additionally admit the existence of discrimination in their countries;

44. Encourages all Member States who have not yet done so to sign and ratify the International Convention on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination as a means to increase international collaboration towards eliminating racial discrimination, xenophobia, and related intolerances;

45. Calls for collaboration between the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and UNDP and related intolerance in providing technical expertise for Member States in the completion of reports to the United Nations CERD in order to ensure international standards for inclusive education are being met;

46. Encourages each Member State to establish national committees on the elimination of racial discrimination within their own governments, modeled after that of the Spanish Observatory of Racism and Xenophobia in order to:

   a. Gather data with expert analysis and a detailed diagnosis, creating a comprehensive understanding of the situation when implementing national legislation,

   b. Establish communication networks throughout regional blocs with relevant international bodies to create a country specific approach to data collection and analysis,
c. Enhance reporting mechanisms through the appointment of an individual or committee to oversee the creation of reports to the CERD in a timely and efficient manner;

47. Encourages willing and able Member States to create national frameworks for the elimination of discrimination modeled after Togo’s National Reconciliation Program in order to:

a. Support ethnic equality in political participation,

b. Support a fair legal system with due process for all citizens, regardless of race, religion, gender, or ethnic group,

c. Enhance coordination between States and relevant NGOs and regional bodies in program and policy implementation;

48. Encourages Member States to promote the oversight of political participation in their own nations through the incorporation of national oversight commissions modeled after Kenya's National Human Rights Commission;

49. Urges all individuals, and civil society groups to submit an official complaint to the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial, discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances about incidences of human rights abuses related to racial, ethnic, or religious discrimination that have already occurred, are ongoing, or which have a high risk of occurring in order to:

a. Allow this discrimination to be detected and identified accurately,

b. To facilitate potential involvement by the Special Rapporteur in the form of an urgent appeal or a letter of allegation to the perpetrator.
The General Assembly Third Committee,

Affirming the principles outlined within the United Nations Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (A/RES/18/1904) and the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (ICERD),

Taking note of the Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief and its principles of freedom of choice for every person regarding the topic of religion,

Recognizing that there are a plethora of motives for genocide including potential for religious motivations,

Deeply concerned with the strife many Member States have faced due to religious conflicts that begin at the local level and have the potential to expand onto an international level,

Mindful of Articles 22 and 27 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, Reaffirming the definition presented in Article 2 of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, as well as recalling the importance of continuing the work towards the goals set forth therein,

Regretting that discrimination against different religions is an ideal that is learned, while acknowledging that it can also be prevented by emphasizing shared values,

Noting the effectiveness of bilateral relationships in starting religious dialogue between Member States,

Deeply disturbed that these instances of religious intolerances and genocide cause a hindrance on social, economic and political statuses of Member States,

Concerned with the general lack of emphasis placed upon the importance of genocide within the international system,

Believing that each person should have equal human rights regardless of religious preferences,

Appreciating the achievements accomplished by the United Nations (UN) Research Institution of Social Development, Recognizing the Pan American Development Foundation’s (PADF) Believe in Tolerance program, which creates a peacefully environment where people can respect differences,

1. Condemns discrimination of any and all human beings based on religious beliefs among a variety of other basis;

2. Recognizes the need to address the topic of genocide within the international community, while simultaneously urging Member States to discuss the subject’s inclusion within their national policy agendas;

3. Urges Member States to encourage the proliferation of bilateral relationships with the goal of opening up dialogue regarding:
   a. Genocide and ways to work towards preventing future occurrences;
   b. Religion and ways to combat religious intolerance;
4. Suggests the establishment of a Convention for the Promotion of Religious Tolerance and the Elimination of Genocide which will:

   a. Welcome international discussions concerning recent past and present social and cultural conflicts as well as what actions can be taken to prevent further occurrences thereof;

   b. Focus on discussions centered around:

      i. Encouraging all Member States to be officially unsupportive of religious intolerances presented by any persons or organizations;

      ii. Endorsing all Member States to implement measures that assist in eliminating religious intolerance, such as promoting discussion on the subjects through the Convention and inviting diverse guests to participate, as well as inviting the UN Research Institution of Social Development to produce publications on various religious teachings and their similarities for distribution among Member States in order to promote shared values and genuine appreciation among one another;

      iii. Encouraging all Member States to condemn any conflicts based on religious discrimination;

      iv. Expand education in regards to addressing the holistic topic genocide;

      v. Introduce the opportunity for an international forum regarding the topic of genocide;

      vi. Endorsing the creation of an open Early Warning System Database for genocide prevention, which would look at a set of indicators, such as war, levels of social tolerance and political unease;

   c. Logistically:

      i. Be open to all Members States in terms of participation and/or attendance;

      ii. Be held once every five years for a duration of five days;

      iii. Have its location selected by bid, the first of which to be decided by the General Assembly Third Committee in its 72nd session for an opening date of the first Convention to be held in 2022, with all bids thereafter being selected at the prior Convention;

      iv. Reference the framework set forth in the Olympic Charter’s by-law to rule 33, section 2, which presents a framework for the evaluation of bids including the necessity for financial guarantees including the necessity of all operational costs of the Convention to be set within the bid, encompassing local, regional, national and private entity funding;

5. Endorses all national education programs that highlight the necessity of social, cultural and religious diversity in the modern age, while considering the need for an international education framework tailored to and implemented at a national level, focusing on:

   a. Local discussion of genocide and the instances of intolerance that lead thereto, as there is a need to make sure that the history of genocide and its causes are not forgotten, so as to make sure there is no repetition thereof in the future;

   b. The institution of a trans-national teachers training program proliferating increased tolerance through instruction on common religious, historical and cultural grounds;

   c. The use of media and technology to promote religious tolerance, taking advantage of:

      i. Digital media, including but not limited to applications such as Facebook and Twitter campaigns, and Google ads;

      ii. Literature which is both academic and leisure in nature;

6. Welcomes collaboration for the purposes of funding the various aforementioned programs between Member States, regional organizations, entities within the private sector and NGOs, such as:
a. The Cummings Institute for World Justice;
b. The European Instrument for Democracy and Human Rights;
c. The Office of the High Commissioner of Human Rights.
The General Assembly Third Committee,

Guided by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR),

Reiterating the importance of the ratification and full implementation of the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (ICERD) as it is one of the most widely accepted human rights instruments,

Recalling all previous resolutions regarding the topic, most recently resolution 67/156 of 20 December 2012,

Commending the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD) on its tireless efforts to assist Member States in fulfilling their international obligations under the articles of International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (ICERD) through recommendations and concerns,

Recognizing the achievements made by the International Labor Organization (ILO), United Nations Volunteers, UNESCO, and UN-Women towards a world free of racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances, such as the UN Women Project Assistant and ILO’s “Assessing and Addressing the Effects of Trade on Employment” project,

Realizing that the global community is in need of a united stance to eradicate inequalities in order to ensure the participation of all groups in social, economic, political and cultural life as the key to eliminate any form of discrimination, xenophobia or other related intolerances, because no country is immune to racism,

Deeply concerned about the ongoing underrepresentation or even exclusion of marginalized groups in Member States’ national institutions which can result in difficulties making their problems heard and their opinions and needs considered,

Recalling the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW), adopted on 3 September 1981, and maintaining the agenda for national action expressed in this document in order to reduce the likelihood of gender-based discrimination and resist patriarchal systems,

Aware of the unresolved problem of gender inequality, especially emphasizing the unequal opportunities for women on the job market that are based on intolerances and prejudices and lead - according to a statement from the ILO on 6 March 2015 - to women on average earning only 77 per cent of men’s earnings, which constitutes a serious form of discrimination,

Especially concerned about the ongoing discrimination against women in developing regions of the world, particularly in educational programs, as shown in United Nations Statistic Division figures which state that two thirds of all illiterate adults are women,

Appreciating the efforts made by Member States in order to include marginalized populations into society, such as the creation of national committees concerned with the rights of minorities in Albania, India, Latvia, Romania and Serbia,

Noting at the same time that some measures implemented by Member States aimed towards the inclusion of marginalized populations did not yet reach their full potential,

1. Urges Member States to develop national programs aimed at improving the literacy of women and reflecting and strengthening their skill-set, for example by developing competences in bilingual concepts and intercultural... communication in order for women to gain confidence and opportunities to participate fully in the decision-making processes in their families and communities;

2. Encourages Member States to provide women with the necessary tools and job training in order for them to have a strong background to increase their employment possibilities, career chances and earnings by creating new projects or reinforce already existing national framework, funded predominantly by the Member States on a national level with the support of the International Labor Organization (ILO) and with the help of and observed by United Nations Volunteers, UNESCO, and UN-Women in terms of content, such as:

   a. The Global Fund for Women’s “Tools For Change”, which collaborates with local organizations specializing in fields such as technology and leadership, in order to build knowledge, skills and self-confidence for applicants, which includes advocating for change through increasing public awareness and influencing attitudes in support of women’s human rights;

   b. The World Bank’s Adolescent Girls Initiative “Economic Empowerment of Adolescent Girls and Young Women” in Liberia that aims towards increasing wage and self-employment for young women through programs consisting of six-month classroom training of business development skills followed by a six-month practical placement and support, which includes micro-enterprise advisory services;

   c. Senegal’s gender equality initiative program run through the Senegalese Agency for Leadership Development (AMLD) in cooperation with the International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance (International IDEA) which facilitates workshops on gender mainstreaming of election observation initiatives for political parties and civil observers that require all candidate lists of legislative, regional, municipal, and rural elections to have equal number of female and male candidates;

   d. Programs that foster a gender-conscious environment in traditionally gender-specific work sectors such as construction, maintenance, green and transportation industries, encouraging all-inclusive participation of women across public and private labor divisions, through hands-on skill training, classroom instruction, comprehensive physical fitness assessment, job development and placement services;

3. Recognizes that economic hardship and the promises of prosperity have caused many women and other vulnerable peoples to fall prey to issues such as human trafficking and other crimes against humanity, therefore not allowing them to be active participants in society;

4. Recommends the creation and financing of national councils consisting of one elected representative of every national minority to conduct the minority autonomy in the domains of culture, education, information and the use of language in order to ensure the recognition of their needs and opinions on a national level through:

   a. Issuing regular reports directly to the government on all matters concerning their fields of interest and the current legal and social status of minority groups;

   b. Exchanging best practices with other National Minority Councils on an annual basis in an international assembly organized through collaboration of the State parties, based on the same principles as the United Nations Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues (UNPFII), on an annual basis as a point of reflection and debate, producing one outcome document addressed to the General Assembly Third Committee surveying the global situation of all national minorities, thereby providing a unique and precise insight into the causes and prevalence of discrimination against minorities;

5. Encourages Member States to establish or review already existing mechanisms that allow for sufficient participation of minority groups in the government body, such as representative numbers or positions specifically designated to minorities and thereby acknowledging their presence, unique skills and knowledge;

6. Calls upon Member States to provide, if requested by the National Minority Councils and in cooperation with the countries’ minority groups an official translated version of key documents in any form they see fit, including but not limited to the constitution and basic laws, in languages mainly spoken by the minority groups, in order to give them the opportunity to participate politically and socially and ensure transparency on all levels;

7. Also calls upon Member States to fulfill their obligations under Article. 9 ICERD to submit reports to CERD on measures taken to implement the convention in order with the reporting timeline;

8. Urges the CERD to collaborate with local Non-Governmental Organizations as partners for cooperation when implementing their concerns and recommendations regarding the ICERD, if State parties are not able to tackle these problems for reasons of lack of financial or human resources;

9. Decides to remain seized of this priority matter at its seventieth session under the item entitled “Eliminating Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerances”.
The General Assembly Third Committee,

Guided by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, as well as the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and its respective covenants,

Recalling the importance of the 1951 Convention and 1967 Protocol Relating to the Status of Refugees, with a specific emphasis on Article Three, which prohibits discrimination of refugees based on race, religion, or country of origin,

Further Recalling Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Racial Discrimination, and the Convention Against Discrimination in Education adopted by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) on 14 December 1960,

Being fully aware that the emerging diversity in most societies poses challenges in terms of successful integration,

Convinced that eliminating racism, xenophobia and related intolerances will be an important contribution to create a fairer, more secure, and better world,

Emphasizing immigrants have positive impacts on continuing economic and social prosperity in their country of adoption,

Realizing the importance of General Assembly Resolution A/RES/69/197 on the “Protection of Migrants” which calls for the prevention of crimes against migrants,

Appreciating the work done by the World Bank in establishing the Global Knowledge Partnership on Migration and Development (KNOMAD) dedicated to information gathering on regulatory migrant policy at an international level,

Stressing the importance to develop the economic rights of vulnerable groups which rely highly on the agricultural sector, e.g. indigenous people, and recognizing that sustainable and economic development foster an environment of tolerance and equality,

Notes its appreciation of all UN bodies targeting agricultural sustainable development, particularly those such as the Food and Agricultural Organization,

Commending the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (ICERD) on its tireless efforts to assist States to fulfill their international obligations to fight Xenophobia and related intolerances, Reaffirming the successful 2012 UNECO initiative “Teaching Respect for All” that calls for an educational response to counter racial discrimination and xenophobic violence,

Having considered UNESCO’s International Conference on Education that implements cultural development and conflict resolution in school activities and programs,

Deploring that migrant workers are still prevented from enhancing their occupational skills, which decreases considerably their chances of employment,

Believing that educational institutions are an essential instrument for tackling the root causes of racial discrimination, xenophobia, and related intolerances,

Being aware of the racial and socio-economic divides that inhibit diversity and integration in many school systems,

Realizing that interactions with and the understanding of foreign cultures promote tolerance and acceptance,
1. Encourages the adoption of the United Nations, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) program “Teaching Respect for All” which promotes an educational response to counter discrimination and violence by strengthening the foundations of mutual tolerance and cultivating respect for all people regardless of colour, gender, class, sexual orientation, national, ethnic, or religious orientation/identity.

2. Calls upon Member States to include education and awareness of the vast number of cultures throughout the world into their curriculum by:
   a. Inviting UNESCO and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) to assemble a panel of experts to assist in the development of a recommended, universally applicable curriculum to support youth development by:
      i. Using core classes in every grade level that focus on teaching the customs, traditions, languages, and other pertinent information of the different ethnic groups present in their respective country;
   b. Reinforcing acceptance and tolerance of all people irrespective of race, religion, socio-economic standing, and any other related factors;

3. Promotes the creation of awareness outreach programs to educate peoples on the misconceptions and harm of racism, stereotyping, and religious persecution by:
   a. Recognizing the fact that each national government has an obligation to protect its citizens;
   b. Inviting civil society and relevant organizations to participate and promote such awareness campaigns;

4. Emphasizes the importance of educational institutions in the promotion of diversity and integration among races by providing incentives for schools to actively promote and increase the level of diversity among their students bodies;

5. Further Encourages Member States to:
   a. Research and understand the root of negative beliefs toward vulnerable groups to assist in creating measures to combat racism and discrimination;
   b. Establish a commission of experts and sociologists who will create a report to combat sectarian intolerances within their countries;
   c. Promote dialogue and communication among the minorities, migrants, and the citizens, by:
      i. Organizing programs that lead student to better learn foreign cultures;
      ii. Supporting and creating extracurricular and recreational activities between students in first and secondary levels, where there will be opportunities to interact with other ethnic, religious groups and discover their customs;

6. Further urges to consider working in accordance with NGOs and pre-existing UN institutions to assist those who are most vulnerable to racial discrimination and xenophobia, including but not limited to racial groups, immigrants, and other marginalized groups, by:
   a. Encouraging member states to acknowledge and implement local collective bodies by creating a representative body for ethnic minorities and immigrants;
   b. Suggesting the creation for immigration associations and unions to help represent those prone to racial discrimination and xenophobia through assistance with career placement and educational opportunities;
7. Urges Member States to work together to aid both refugees and States affected by refugee migration by:

   a. Encouraging refugee focused NGOS and established refugee funds to increase their financial resources as a way to insure improve access to healthcare and education for refugees;

   b. Recommending Member States to examine their capacity to grant more refugees asylum in their nations by easing legal restrictions in an effort to allow a higher amount of willing refugee resettlement;

8. Further promotes for the implementation of the Traffic Light Framework by the Committee to Eliminate Racial Discrimination (CERD), a country matrix in which States are presented in an order of amount of discrimination cases that need assistance in their nations, through a categorized system which includes:

   a. Green for countries with less discrimination cases;

   b. Yellow for countries with some discrimination cases;

   c. Red for countries with urgent cases of discrimination;

   d. Operating under the jurisdiction of the Human Rights Council and funded by the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights;

   e. Voluntary reports based off of submissions to the CERD;

9. Calls upon on Member States to strengthen existing laws or implement new laws to ensure that unlawful actions against migrants are accounted for, by:

   a. Recommending the enactment of laws by Member States mitigating abuse of migrants in the workplace;

   b. Emphasizing that migrant workers must receive fair compensation, in accordance to national wage level, for services provided;

   c. Implementing partnerships between local, national governments, and migrant advocacy groups in order to assist in the development of measures to protect migrant agricultural workers;

10. Underlines the importance of enhancing economic participation of minority groups and migrants through supportive measures such as improving rural credit through microfinance initiatives funded by the United Nations Capital Development Fund, in collaboration with the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC), by:

   a. Utilizing local participation in order to identify key sectors and areas with socioeconomic disparities within local communities;

   b. Allowing the local committee to determine the lending criteria: interest rate, loan duration, maximum loan size, and objectives;

11. Further Endorses assistance and funding from the Food and Agriculture Organization to provide aid to indigenous people and migrant workers in Agriculture who face discrimination, by collaborating with NGO's that:

IGOs such as TRFA;

19. Encourages all Member States to initiate a two-way language program, titled “Twinning Program” through the partnership with the United Nations Alliance of Civilizations, which will be hosted inside any public space provided by the Member States, willing to participate, with volunteers handling moderating this program that consists in exchanging free language lessons between marginalized groups and the official language speakers of the country they are living in to enhance the communication and the opportunities presented to those groups and work to protect, preserve, and promote these languages;

a. Be funded by the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) through their branch that pertains to and promotes “Youth Leadership and Participation”,

b. Take place annually and for a minimum of three weeks in order to contribute to the student’s knowledge of different cultures,

c. Allow academic exchanges for young students in order to eliminate xenophobia aimed to change the perspective in the student’s mind and learn about the cultural diversity,

d. Put in place a web interface in order for the students and the public to develop a good intersection between cultures;

20. Emphasizes the need for a second World Conference on the Issue of racism, discrimination, and xenophobia that would take place in Geneva in 2016;

21. Calls upon Member States to uphold the human rights and dignity of all people seeking citizenship through legally established processes;

22. Emphasizes the need to promote equality and social justice through non-discrimination judicial systems with impartial investigating leading to fair and equal treatment in sentences, regardless of race, religion, or ethnicity, all done in collaboration with the United Nations Inter-regional Crime and Justice Research Institute (UNICRI);

23. Calls for the establishment of the International Competition Be the Change for the Eradication of Discrimination aiming for the elimination of racism at its roots by changing people’s minds, which would be organized as follows:

   a. Four categories would constitute the competition, each one representing a group involved in this issue, one for schools, one for cities, one for NGOs and one for private companies,

   b. Two rounds would appoint the international winners: first, at an national level in a first round of selection, eventually the second round would appoint the international winner in each of the four categories on the 21th March,

   c. The four winners would finally present their project at the United Nations headquarters,

   d. Voluntary financing of the participating States, and with the collaboration of UNESCO, UNITAR, and UNIFAM;

24. Suggests an international operation entitled “Operation Adopt and Adapt” that would not infringe the sovereignty of nations and that to comprehensively cover this topic and entailing:

   a. Educational and pedagogical programs that would help facilitate and naturally accept minority groups into the fabric of the society, and additionally solve problems that occur between different groups in that manner not all feuds have to go through courts and further hinder the relationship, it is therefore an amiable way to solve problems,

   b. A delegation that consists of specialists in sociology that would handle the reporting and solving of all problem should they happen between individuals in a heterogeneous society;

25. Welcomes further funding from the New Development Bank and the World Bank to contribute to the growth of recognized vulnerable of Member States;
26. Encourages private sectors such as Global Partnerships for Effective Development Corporation to invest and pledge to financially support diversity;

27. Welcomes all Member States to ratify the existing frameworks and conventions concerning the elimination of racial discrimination internationally by applying the C-FON Programme (Capacitation for Our Nation Programme) nationally through which workshops will be held to encourage implementing the law, order, and respect of human rights, which would include:

   a. Representatives of the administrative and the criminal justice system,

   b. Police and military units;

28. Invites Member States to work with NGO’s such as Agricultural Cooperative Development International to provide technical agricultural assistance to all discriminated group, determined by the UNDP regional offices in conjunction with reports provided by the CERD;

29. Suggests Member States to unite their efforts with UN bodies, such as the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) and the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) as well as NGOs, such as the International Movement Against All Forms of Discrimination and Racism (IMADR), to increase funding for national action plans for the prevention of racism, discrimination, and xenophobia;

30. Recommends Member States to work in partnership with the United Nations Research Institute for Social Development (UNRISD) to undertake research programs reviewing national policies:

   a. To promote and strengthen cultural diversity as a crucial aspect in anti-discrimination laws,

   b. To increase and ensure the efficiency of national law implementation through the reinforcement of local governments’ political commitment by cooperating with the society to increase diversity in the public sector like security;

31. Calls for the expansion of the Coalition of Cities by:

   a. Creating a cross regional framework for the program, emphasizing relationships with cities abroad with a continued focus on:

      i. Ensuring municipalities are enabled as the protector of public interests,

      ii. Ensuring municipalities are the primacy organization for human rights, iii. Shared responsibility between communities for respecting and promoting human rights,

   b. Expanding the focus of the program with the additional areas of:

      i. Religious diversity,

      ii. Gender differences,

      iii. Any and all forces of intolerance;

32. Further Recommends Member States consider a government official exchange for a period of one month between partner cities to strengthen the physical relationship and emphasize the shared vision to end discrimination of any form;

33. Urges all Member States consider cooperating with grassroots organizations in providing assistance with the social integration of those subject to racial discrimination, including but not limited to immigrants, indigenous communities, and other marginalized groups, at the regional level by encouraging the creation of employment programs to provide immigrants with and equal career opportunities to those native to the land.
The General Assembly Third Committee,

Drawing attention to Article 2 of the Charter of the United Nations which underlines the sovereign equality of all its members,

Recalling Article 1 of the UN Declaration on the Elimination of all Forms of Racial Discrimination (1963) which condemns the discrimination between human beings on the grounds of race, color or ethnic origin,

Emphasizing the notions of equality and integrity laid out in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the Durban Declaration and Program of Action,

Alarmed by the increasing presence of racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances within the wider international community which has manifested itself in extremist behaviors,

Recognizing the impact of all types of racial discrimination and the individual nature of these issues to each Member State,

Calling upon the aims set out in the sustainable development goals to provide education to all peoples,

Bearing in mind General Assembly resolution 67/155 which emphasizes the responsibility of each Member State to combat racial discrimination effectively,

Commending the efforts already made by United Nations Education, Science, and Culture Organization (UNESCO) in establishing education programs across a number of member states which encourage the teaching and promotion of multi-ethnic and cross-cultural acceptance,

Noting the unsatisfactorily low participation of Member States at the Durban III Conference, and encouraging the international community to take seriously the urgent task of addressing racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances at an international level,

Deeply concerned by the heinous actions taking place in Syria by terrorist groups targeting religious minorities in the country, and fuelling hatred among its citizens,

Understanding that the global cultural immersion of young people is an essential component of the functionality in the whole of the international community,

Recognizing that there is an inverse relationship between education and discrimination,

Further emphasizing the importance of education in increasing awareness of cultural differences as a method of preventing extremism that stems from racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances,

Reaffirming the importance of the International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, which took place on 21 March 2015 in bringing together the international community in the mission to end racial discrimination,

1. Invites further expansion of UNESCO workshops within Member States, to promote the advancement, transfer, and sharing of knowledge pertaining to both global diversity and threats to this diversity by:

   a. Promoting the use of the UNESCO Teaching and Learning for a Sustainable Future education programme in accordance with Education as Sustainable Development as the primary mechanism for this diversity education;
b. Increasing the number of teachers globally that are trained according to UNESCO’s Teaching and Learning for a Sustainable Future standards by:

i. Promoting the unbiased and objective teaching of ethnic cultures and histories to increase both awareness and understanding of the variety of international cultures;

ii. Encouraging reflection on the important role religious education plays in Education for Sustainable Development;

iii. Paying specific attention to the teaching of religion, with an emphasis on the separation of religion from extremist ideologies;

c. Suggesting that the funding for this expansion is provided by the International Fund for the Promotion of Culture, World Bank, and related NGOs;

2. Further recommends that these UNESCO Workshops aim to work in cooperation with each Member State to continue to identify the issues related to race, xenophobia, and other intolerances specific or unique to each Member State, as well as continue to design solutions specifically-tailored to these unique issues by:

a. Acknowledging that the issues and needs of Member States are indeed unique, and it follows that the solutions and methods of education also need to be unique;

b. Expecting collaboration between these UNESCO Workshops and the Member States’ governments to preserve state choice, objectives, and guidance in existing education systems;

3. Encourages willing Member States to initiate, continue, or expand their membership and involvement with the United Nations Alliance of Civilizations (UNAOC) Student Exchange Programs, as this program is designed to foster peaceful, inclusive societies as well as counter violent extremism by:

a. Communicating the importance of global exchange with the over fifty countries that are currently not members of the Group of Friends;

b. Increasing the number of students internationally who are given opportunities to develop as cultural ambassadors through these programs;

c. Diversifying the countries and backgrounds from which these students are selected, by similarly diversifying the competition requirements and focuses of these fellowship programs;

d. Suggesting that this expansion and diversification is supported financially by interested individual Member States, as this has traditionally been the case;

4. Endorses the establishment of an awareness campaign, drawing on the example of the ‘He for She’ campaign, that promotes diversity, discussion, equality, and inclusion utilizing a variety of media platforms, including press and social media outlets (#DissDiscrimination), with the aim of increasing international discussion on eliminating intolerances by:

a. Understanding that diverse groups of people have diverse means of expression, including but not limited to painting, song, writing, speech, musical composition, and film;

b. Encouraging the use of these diverse cultural and artistic mediums for expression of both shared and unique experiences of discrimination, as the use of these mediums opens an accessible dialogue;

c. Suggesting the adoption of a UNESCO goodwill ambassador for this awareness campaign to publically promote the ideals set forth in the “#DissDiscrimination” campaign;

d. Calling upon the World Bank to provide necessary funding for this awareness campaign due to the clear correlation between discrimination and world poverty;
e. Additionally calling upon the International Fund for the Promotion of Culture (IFPC) to provide further financial support for the campaign;

5. Encourages the promotion of ideologies within national and international media that support all individuals or groups of peoples irrelevant of race, ethnicity, nationality or religious belief, to promote a climate of tolerance, inclusion and acceptance and to facilitate a positive use of freedom of speech;

6. Invites all international media outlets to work cooperatively to address the existing bias and unjust portrayal of particular individuals, groups or countries, encouraging these outlets to engage in cross-cultural communication and awareness-raising:

   a. In this regard, suggests the creation of an annual forum for discussion between broadcast corporations, state-sponsored as well as independent, national and international newspapers, magazines, and periodicals, operated in conjunction with the International Communication Association (ICA) and UNAOC Media Programme which would:

      i. Encourage them to cooperatively address the existing bias and unjust portrayal of individuals, groups or nationalities;
      ii. Be hosted by countries on a rotating, regional basis chosen by majority vote while also respecting equal representation of all participating organizations and Member States involved;
      iii. Be used as a platform to facilitate international media cooperation to produce a report to be submitted to the General Assembly Third Committee outlining the recommended actions taken by international and national media outlets to address discrimination and intolerances;

   b. Funded through a shared fund to which participating organizations contribute a voluntary sum;

7. Calls upon the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) to create an institutionalized international framework for the domestic implementation of Truth and Reconciliation Commissions, which will allow for:

   a. The endorsement of Truth and Reconciliation Commissions which would oversee the creation of an internationally-recognized forum for guided discussion and mediation between discriminators and the discriminated as open dialogue pertaining to past and current cases of discrimination;

   b. The suggestion of preventative measures against violent, discriminatory action with the guidance of domestic sovereign governments;

   c. The teaching of racial discrimination and discriminatory acts of violence and their ensuing consequences on the political, social and economic status of groups involved using examples of contemporary cases of discrimination.
The General Assembly Third Committee,

Reaffirming the principles of the Charter of the United Nations, specifically Article 1, as well as the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, which establish the right to self-determination, and the belief that all persons, regardless of ethnic, religious, national, or other identities, retain particular fundamental freedoms,

Recognizing the right of each Member State to exercise state sovereignty in accordance with Articles 2 and 7 of the Charter of the United Nations,

Noting with deep concern that despite the important advances made by the international community in the fight against racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia, and related intolerances since the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, these issues persevere, resulting in countless victims of discrimination,

Recalling Article 1 of the United Nations Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (A/RES/18/1904), which states that discrimination between human beings on the grounds of race, color, or ethnic origin is an offense to human dignity and shall be condemned by the international community,

Further recalling the work of the 2001 World Conference Against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance,

Deeply conscious that discrimination between human beings based on ethnic origin, race, color, or any other group identities not only inhibits constructive and amicable relationships between Member States, but also precipitates counteractive relations between individuals within those same Member States,

Bearing in mind that while the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) emphasize the importance to protect and promote civil, political, and social rights in all countries, they have not fully addressed the problems of human rights and inequality,

Appealing the multilateral development banks to continue assisting developing countries facing financial gaps, quickly and substantially, in a flexible, concessional, fast-dispersing, and front-loaded manner to help achieve the MDGs,

Emphasizing the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD), which during its 51st session in 1997 stated that intolerances faced by indigenous peoples falls within the convention’s mandate to eradicate instances of discrimination,

Believing in the necessity of upholding and fully implementing the Universal Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous People (UNDRIP), Noting further the World Conference of Indigenous Peoples carried out in 2014, which called upon the international community to consider ways to enable indigenous peoples’ representatives and institutions to participate in meetings of relevant United Nations bodies on issues affecting them,

Aware that indigenous peoples as a sizable population require the direct attention of the international community to advance their rights and fight the different forms of discrimination, as they represent 5% of the world’s population, and however remain the 15% of the world’s poor and 33% of the rural poor,

Noting with concern the exclusion of indigenous populations and their economic marginalization in Poverty Reduction Strategy Papers (PRSPs) as well as in the post-2015 Development Agenda, Supporting fully the ongoing Third International Decade of Indigenous Peoples and the UN’s previous work in advancing the interests of indigenous peoples, such as the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues (UNPFII), and Article 21 of the UNDRIP, addressing the role of Member States in helping indigenous peoples utilize their respective resources to participate in their own economic systems,

Firmly convinced that Member States should continue engaging with the Human Rights Council through interactive dialogue and an extensive reporting process,

Imploring the committee to utilize the special procedures of the UNHRC such as the provision of independent experts, special rapporteurs, and working groups, in order to effectively and extensively compile reports,

Fully acknowledging the profound necessity to implement non-assimilative educational initiatives to encompass and empower marginalized and vulnerable communities, including indigenous peoples and mobile and vulnerable persons throughout the global North and South,

Calling attention to the 2014 Bhutan Declaration on Climate Change and Mountain Indigenous Peoples and the 2008 Ecuadorian Constitution granting Rights to Nature, specifically, protecting the inherent rights that Nature holds as outlined in Chapter 7 Article 71-74, and recognizing the symbiotic relationship with lands that indigenous peoples maintain, and the fragile state of natural ecosystems,

1. Encourages the international community to implement a human rights based approach to development that takes into account issues of equality and sustainability, endorsing the fundamental concept of development with culture and identity through the inclusion of voices from women, youth and children, disabled persons and Indigenous peoples;

2. Urges the international community to be more inclusive of the wide variety of racism and discrimination, to pay special attention to problems faced by Indigenous peoples, so that the fight against discrimination is wholly inclusive of marginalized groups by participating in the Social Forum of the Human Rights Council to generate further dialogue on racism;

3. Recommends that Member States and their governing bodies establish a direct and respectful dialogue with marginalized populations at the UNHRC special procedures such as independent experts, special rapporteurs, and working groups in order to ensure that concerns are addressed collaboratively to attend to issues relevant to marginalized and Indigenous peoples who suffer from racism and discrimination;

4. Outlines the importance of diversity in local, regional, and global governmental participations as a method to combat racism, xenophobia, and other related intolerances based on age, gender, and diversity through mainstreaming by recommending:

   a. The creation of candidate lists for legislative, regional, municipal and rural elections that compromise a fair representation of minority groups presented in an unbiased manner;

   b. Facilitation of local workshops using the Senegalese Agency for Leadership and Development (AMLD) as a framework for respective nations to adapt according to cultural applicability;

5. Calls for the creation of the United Nations Indigenous Leaders Committee (UNILC), consisting of regional indigenous leaders, the UNHRC and UNESCO liaisons, and observer states to integrate indigenous issues into anti-discrimination efforts, which will:

   a. Adhere to the UNDRIP and work as part of the United Nations Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues;

   b. Convene once a year at a regional level and location, including participating indigenous leaders, to address issues such as education, environment, socio-economic inclusion, human security, and the location of indigenous discrimination within the larger framework of racism, xenophobia, and other related intolerances;
c. Work with the Human Rights Council to:
   i. Assist in the facilitation with these regional forums;
   ii. Help with capacity development for the realization of these policies at the state level;
   iii. Provide an annual regional analysis at the UNPFII;

d. Collaborate consistently with the General Assembly Third Committee, the Special Rapporteur on Racism from the Human Rights Council, the Special Rapporteur on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, and the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights to ensure that indigenous perspectives are included in the larger dialogue on racism and discrimination;

e. Assemble once a year at the UNPFII to report on the development and progress regarding the regional committees initiatives;

f. Further recommends that the UNILC first begin by addressing:
   i. A set of criteria for hiring teachers in indigenous communities, in collaboration with the International Work Group on Indigenous Affairs Post-2015 Development Process: Education framework, including educational initiatives for multiculturalism and multilingualism in Native and official state languages in order to allow indigenous children the option to maintain their cultural heritage as well as participate in surrounding communities;
   ii. Human security in regions and states where personal well-being has been threatened by way of displacement and conflict;
   iii. Further methods to implement state-by-state political inclusion leaders;
   iv. The unique concerns of populations of indigenous Afro-descended Latin Americans,
   v. Issues of economic disparity as they relate to indigenous populations;
   vi. Ensuring adequate translation of legislation into indigenous languages;
   vii. Reintegrating dialogue around indigenous issues into a larger framework of racial discrimination;

g. Work with the International Working Group for Indigenous Affairs;

h. Receive funding from existing frameworks for indigenous rights, including:
   i. United Nations Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Peoples to fund state and regional representatives of indigenous communities, organizations, and leaders;
   ii. Civil Society Education Fund to work on matters of multicultural and multilingual education;
   iii. Grants Facility for Indigenous Peoples to specifically fund Indigenous communities in rural areas of the world, and improve well-being, economic stability, and access to food security;
   iv. UNESCO to sponsor liaisons train and facilitate regional forums, and provide UN officials to report to the UNPFII on regional indigenous issues;
   v. Programs, projects, and campaigns funded by willing donors working with state governments, NGOs and IGOs;

6. \textit{Suggests} that the United Nations High Commissioner on Refugees appoint members to work directly with the proposed UNILC regional committees to report on the statues of human security and protection of rights in Member States by evaluating the impact of discrimination against indigenous peoples for consideration of future work in elimination on such discrimination;

7. \textit{Requests} that the Special Rapporteur on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples in conjunction with the proposed UNILC, UNHRC, and UNESCO assist the economic disenfranchisement of indigenous peoples by:
a. Creating an annual report specific to the economic positions of indigenous peoples around the world and on a regional basis;
b. Querying Member States to assist the rapporteur to assemble these reports by offering relevant domestic information;
c. Conceiving possible solutions after creating reports to increase the financial position of indigenous peoples;

8. Strongly Encourages Member States that have not yet ratified or acceded to the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (CERD) to consider doing so by:
   a. Contributing their financial obligation to maintaining the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination;
   b. Meeting the regular reporting requirements that each Member State must complete on the domestic status of discrimination within their country;

9. Calls upon Member States to work with the proposed UNILC, HRC and UN Women to aid indigenous peoples, women, ethnic minorities, and other marginalized groups to become further involved in their governments and gain employment through capacity building programs that train marginalized peoples for entry level public sector employment;

10. Encourages the prevention of discrimination and promotion of inclusion of all peoples by translating laws into Indigenous languages, thereby, increasing the possibility of political participation of indigenous peoples;

11. Invites all Member States to consider the recommendations in the 2014 Bhutan Declaration on Climate Change and Mountain Indigenous Peoples and the Ecuadorian Constitution on the Rights to Nature to be regionally, culturally, and ecologically appropriate by:
   a. Respecting the Bio-cultural Heritage rights of indigenous farming communities;
   b. Ensuring that traditional and contemporary indigenous languages are continually supported and are allowed to function as living libraries, as well as being the basis for self-determination and education initiatives within indigenous communities;
   c. Supporting the rights of indigenous peoples to not be exploited by the use of Genetically Modified Organisms and patenting in traditional farming practices;

12. Encourages Member States to maintain territories officially recognized as indigenous lands;

13. Suggests that Member States recognize and observe the UN International Day for the Elimination of Racial Elimination;

14. Further Suggests that all nations observe the UN International Day of the World’s Indigenous Peoples by preventing discrimination, racism, and xenophobia through education;

15. Fully Supports the inclusion of diversification and leadership of marginalized peoples into the post 2015 Sustainable Development Goals.
The General Assembly Third Committee,

Guided by the principles set forth in Article One of the United Nations Charter and believing in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights,

Reiterating the importance of the ratification and full implementation of the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (ICERD) as one of the most widely accepted human rights instruments and recalling all previous resolutions regarding the topic, most recently General Assembly resolution 67/156 of 20 December 2012,

Recognizing that the goal for universality and reporting compliance of Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD) has not yet been met because of concerns about clauses affecting sovereignty, specifically Article 4 which 19 Member States have raised concerns about,

Recalling the General Assembly resolution 67/155 stressing the importance for Member States to take advantage of the assistance delivered by the Special Rapporteur on Racial Discrimination with the purpose of enhancing both the effectiveness of their national policies and their compliance with the deliberations of UN bodies, trusted domestic and international NGOs,

Deeply alarmed by the recent abuses perpetrated by police officials and the subsequent massive protests taking place in several countries,

Expressing its concern about the deep psychological wounds of slavery, racism and national minority oppression which still exist,

Calling for intervention from the international community,

Recognizing the need to promote awareness via the use of new information and communication technologies to contribute to the fight of intolerances, as stated in GA resolutions 68/150 and 68/237,

Drawing attention to the United Nations Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (A/RES/18/1904) from 1963, which emphasizes ending global racial discrimination as a top priority,

Deeply disturbed by the continued discrimination and violent practices faced by refugees and other marginalized groups,

Deeply concerned by the lack of supervision for parties such as police officers, lawyers, and social work partners that directly work with vulnerable population groups,

Dismayed by the lack of multicultural representation in education systems worldwide,

Firmly convinced that greater action to empower members of marginalized societies through strengthening community engagement will help vulnerable population groups to not fall prey to human trafficking,

Mindful of the resource constraints of developing nations,

Underscoring that monitoring groups and national governments maintain a strong working relationship in identifying the causes of discrimination via reports, which effectively detect human rights shortcomings, and that such a relationship rises out of diligent periodic reviews on discrimination, xenophobia, and other related intolerances must be consistently submitted as an essential part to the solution.
1. Appeals all Member States to review the United Nations Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination as it is critical to implement when striving for good governance;

2. Recommends Article Four of ICERD to be made optional for Member States that ratify to the document to not interfere with their traditional sovereignty to improve overall ratification;

3. Encourages initiatives adopted by many different media institutions to broadcast unbiased information about members of minority groups, like regular and irregular migrants, which are consistently underrepresented;

4. Recognizes the necessity to address the relationship between law enforcement officials and citizens and therefore calls for:
   a. The development of education and training programs for police forces, prosecutors and judges, immigration officials and border guards with the purpose of enabling them to recognize discriminatory practices
   b. The review of national criminal codes integrating racism or xenophobic motivation as an aggravating circumstance;
   c. The provision of guidelines to be designed by the Intergovernmental Working Group on the Effective Implementation of the Durban Declaration and proposed to the General Assembly, guaranteeing proper treatment in police stations complying with the international human rights standards, in particular:
      - Ensuring the possibility to file complaints with Member State’s judicial systems
      - Collecting reports of incidents regarding race in a national database;

5. Requests the creation of an educational program called “Understanding Diversity”, with the goal of educating the global population on dangers of racism or other related intolerances and cultivating appreciation for the beauty of other cultures, to be funded by the United Nations Trust Fund for Action to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination, which would be revived for this venture and be delivered in partnership with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO);

6. Urges Member States to adopt history as a compulsory subject at every level of education, including in the different programs: history of people of African descent and other minority groups before colonialism and their encounter with the western population, genocides and atrocities perpetrated by western country and the contribution to development throughout history of people of African descent and immigrants;

7. Underscores the importance of maintaining and developing national celebration and commemoration days and enhance collaboration with the United Nation Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization with the purpose of preserving holocaust sites and promoting the constructions of new monuments and memorial sites;

8. Encourages the adoption of a quota systems to be applied to the recruitment mechanism of teachers and teaching assistants enabling a fair representation of ethnic and religious minorities encouraging acceptance of self-identity.

9. Considers that the following measures be applied in order to assure that national sovereignty is not violated but also ensure efficient periodic submission of reports to CERD while incentivizing Member States to actively provide periodic reviews of the CERD reports:
   a. Requires that states appoint a public servant called an ombudsman to independently investigate events of discrimination, xenophobia, and related intolerance;
   b. Designates the government appointed ombudsman who represents the respective national sovereignty and stands as an independent entity that submits periodic reviews to the designated Special Rapporteur of the UN;
Adopts the following directives concerning the program for the International Decade for People of African Descent:

a. Appoints the Intergovernmental Working Group on the Effective Implementation of Durban Declaration in cooperation with the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights as the organizer of the program;

b. Urges the coordinating body to actively involve the recent civil campaigns #BlackLivesMatter, #BringBackOurGirls which, though mobilizing hundreds of civilians, did not receive sufficient recognition and legitimation by the international community;

c. Stresses the necessity of the General Assembly to evaluate the progress and impact made on a biannual basis;

d. Encourages initiatives adopted by the most disparate medias to broadcast unbiased information about: members of minority groups which are consistently underrepresented, the condition to which regular and irregular migrants are exposed, intercultural dialogue and inter-faith initiatives.
The General Assembly Third Committee,

Reaffirming the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948), which instructs that all humans are equal and enjoy the same rights,

Highly alarmed by the upsurge of anti-Muslim sentiment and actions in many parts of the world, and the potential of spreading conflicts to vulnerable societies as well as stable diverse societies,

Deeply concerned that Islamophobic acts are not yet considered a crime against humanity, as Fascism and Anti-Semitism presently are,

Affirming that the values of equality, compassion, and justice are core tenets of the peaceful religion of Islam,

Noting with deep concern the sharp increase of intra-religious violence and its destructive consequences for societies, states and regions,

Reiterating that international co-operation is an important factor in aiding Member State compliance with the obligations set by the International Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Racism (ICERD) and the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action (DDPA), which are the crucial documents in the recognition of and response to racism and other related intolerances,

Taking into consideration the constructive role regional and international partnerships and forums such as the Forum against Islamophobia and Racism can play,

Noting with regret that many States have failed to comply with ICERD by not periodically submitting their reports to the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD),

Emphasizing Articles 1 and 7 of the ICERD, which condemn discrimination on the basis of race, color, ethnicity, and religious affiliation,

Highlighting Article 7 of ICERD, which underlines the need to combat prejudices that lead to racial discrimination, xenophobia, and related intolerances, as well as promotes understanding and tolerance among ethnic groups and in the international community,

Taking note of Articles 61 and 150 of the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action (2001), which specifically address discrimination based on religion,

Recalling the High-Level Dialogues on Interreligious and Intercultural Understanding and Cooperation for Peace in the General Assembly (2007-2008),

Endorsing the work of the Doha International Center for Interfaith Dialogue (DICID) and the World Conference on Dialogue (2008), which promote annual conferences on interreligious exchange,

Recalling A/RES/66/226 (2012), on the promotion of interreligious and intercultural dialogue, understanding, and co-operation for peace,

Cognizant of the progress made by various non-governmental organizations such as the European Youth Parliament, the United Nations Youth Volunteers Programme, and the International Cultural Exchange Services in combatting discrimination, xenophobia, racism, and other related intolerances by motivating youth to act against this discrimination, Applauding the efforts of the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF) in the implementation of the “No Lost Generation” Strategy, which advocates for introducing educational opportunities to school-aged Syrian youth,

Reaffirming Articles 19 and 20 of the International Covenant of Civil and Political Rights (1966) which stipulates that racial and religious hatred shall be prohibited by law,

Noting the powerful role that domestic non-binding advisory human rights commissions within national governments play in combating discrimination through anti-discrimination, outreach, public awareness and social development programs,

Applauding the efforts of the United Nations Populations Fund (UNPFA), which educates individuals and local communities about their basic human rights through local legislative or religious leaders, collaborating with churches, mosques, schools, health units, youth organizations, and business enterprises,

Recognizing the work of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) in working with civil society in developing countries relating to building capacity in the fields of education, diplomacy, peace, and security,

Viewing with appreciation the initiatives taken by UNESCO, including introducing International Years proclaimed by the General Assembly as well as the International Coalition of Cities against Racism,

Expressing its appreciation for the United Nations Research Institute for Social Development (UNRISD) in light of its much-valued work,

Emphasizing the responsibility of the media in avoiding the enhancement of prejudices against any religion,

1. Invites Member States who have not yet done so to accede to or ratify ICERD;

2. Encourages all Member States to adopt the Further Action against Islamophobia as Racism (FAIR) Agenda which consists of a comprehensive approach including:

   a. The introduction of an International Year of Muslim Culture in 2019 in partnership with UNESCO in order to provide a forum for discussing the essence of Islam through highlighting its rich culture, history, and global contributions, and increase dialogue between Islam and other religions history, and global contributions by:

      i. Strongly welcoming Member States, specialized agencies and NGO's to support the implementation of activities for the Year, to ensure concrete results in the achievement of the objectives of the Year of Muslim Culture, with respect to their mandates and existing resources;

      ii. Promoting cultural events that celebrate the rich diversity of Islamic sciences, technology, literature, art, architecture, and other cultural contributions by those organizing bodies;

   b. The creation of public awareness campaigns through conventional media and the internet;

   a. To further intensify their work on meeting local legislatures in raising awareness about human rights by highlighting the issue of Islamophobia;

   b. To promote the development of a zero-tolerance framework for Islamophobia which bridges the gap between policy and implementation towards raising awareness on racial discrimination;
c. To produce publications sponsored by faith-based organizations and universities that promote religious and cultural understandings and clarify the values of religious teachings that are free of discrimination and violence;

4. Calls upon Member States to establish an Interfaith Committee under Article 22 of the UN Charter whose members will be nominated by the General Assembly and be assisted by the Committee of Religious NGOs with its function including:

a. Organizing events, such as conferences, symposia, research and information programmes that will foster intrareligious and interreligious dialogue based on the principles of human rights, human dignity, peaceful coexistence, and tolerance;

b. Hosting a biennial interfaith, intrafaith, and intercultural summit in Geneva that will draw upon the wisdom of religious leaders, religious traditions, civil society, and national representatives, which shall aim at sharing best practices regarding Member States’ policies as well as the experiences of NGOs, and provide solutions to contemporary issues within workshops, thematic and plenary sessions with the underlying principle of respectful dialogue and inspirational leadership;

5. Invites States to foster peaceful international dialogue through financial support to cultural exchange programs, youth programs and youth parliaments, such as the European Youth Parliament, the United Nations Youth Volunteers Programme, and the International Cultural Exchange Services, which provide valuable contributions to the world community by advancing international and intercultural awareness for the purpose of extending anti-discrimination campaigns;

6. Further invites UNICEF to expand the No Lost Generation strategy and the Early Childhood Care and Education Programme so as to be implemented at an international level, including learning opportunities for students to participate in conversations regarding language barriers, discretionary racial and religious discrimination, and related curricula;

7. Encourages all Member States to ensure that their national education systems enable students to gain a comprehensive and balanced view on all religions, and proposes the establishment of a platform for the exchange of best practices regarding teaching methods and contents including but not limited to cultural and religious education, which convenes upon demand and in co-operation with the United Nations Alliance of Civilizations (UNAOC);

8. Proposes the extension of the online broadcasting network of the UN voicing the official stance of the UN on world events, providing a counter-narrative and amplifying the current mechanisms in place;

9. Calls upon UNITAR to develop a training manual for educators to provide accurate information on spiritual diversity as well as correcting misconceptions about religious values and communities;

10. Reiterates support for international co-operation in recognizing, reporting, and addressing intolerance through the implementation of the Durban Declaration, and encourages Member States to counter the harmful effects of intolerance in the spirit of Article 20.2 of the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action (2001);

11. Urges Member States to eliminate all forms of racial or religious profiling which are based on derogatory stereotypes;

12. Invites Member States to refer cases concerning crimes against humanity, to include violations resulting from discrimination based upon race and religion, to regional and international courts;

13. Reaffirms the importance of global partnerships focused on preventing the occurrence of human rights violations affecting refugees, asylum-seekers, and displaced persons, and recommends the following actions be taken;
a. The expansion of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation (UNRR) Initiative within the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) to include refugees and asylum seekers who are suffering from extreme forms of discrimination that led to their displacement;

b. The adoption of a mandate to establish proper social rehabilitation programs for refugees and asylum seekers at the international level to be properly funded through the UNHCR, which reports to the GA;

c. The facilitation of training programs on issues such as cultural sensitivity for countries unequipped to deal with the flow of refugees, through collaboration between governments, NGOs, and relevant UN bodies such as UNESCO;

14. Recommends the inclusion of civil society to increase reporting of ICERD violations through increased consideration of reports and initiatives from NGOs operating within Member States at both the local and state level to:

a. Uncover acts of discrimination;

b. Allow citizens to express their concerns through transparent reporting mechanisms such as anti-discrimination bureaus and hotlines, to allow victims to speak authorities anonymously in order to protect their identity while also providing psychological support;

c. Provide additional information for reports to the CERD, to the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances as well as to other relevant UN bodies;

15. Further recommends continued co-operation with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) in order to deal with discrimination against refugees in a highly interconnected world;

16. Asks Member States to set the elimination of religious intolerances as a priority in the Post-2015 Sustainable Development Goals.
The General Assembly Third Committee,

Guided by the Charter of the United Nations, especially Article 1.3, which identifies the need for international cooperation on solutions of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character and emphasizes the importance of respecting “human rights and fundamental freedoms without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion.”

Remembering the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, especially Article 26, as it affirms the universal right to education, which is a necessary method to address the elimination of discrimination in all forms,

Recalling the sentiments of resolution 68/151, particularly identifying that the roots of discrimination are multifaceted and must be addressed through adequate measures such as education, awareness-raising, and the promotion of dialogue,

Realizing that multicultural sensitive education is a means to eliminate racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances as stated in Article 126 of the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action,

Keeping in mind culturally sensitive sustainable development is essential for the elimination of racial discrimination within emerging economies,

Reiterating the importance of state sovereignty as defined in and protected by Article 2.7 of the Charter of the United Nations, particularly in addressing the elimination of discrimination in all forms,

Reaffirming the importance of the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action, particularly as it discusses the need to address poverty and economic empowerment as key actions to eliminate discrimination against vulnerable and excluded populations,

Recognizing that extreme poverty is a violation of human rights as addressed within MDG Goal 1 and one of the root causes of racial discrimination and related intolerances,

Recalling Article 5 of International Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Racial Discrimination (ICERD) the need for expanded vocational training that is inclusive, culturally sensitive and non-discriminatory as a means to eliminate all forms racial discrimination and related intolerances within the work place,

Recalling the statement made by the Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon in 2011, in regards towards South Africa’s fight on racism, “defeating racism, tribalism, intolerance and all forms of discrimination will liberate us all, victim and perpetrator alike,” especially regarding inter-community diversity and dialogue,

Considering the Article 2 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that strongly affirms that “everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms set forth in this Declaration, without distinction of any kind, such as race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status,”

Drawing attention to the outcome of the 2001 World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance held in Durban, the ICERD, especially the need to address linguistic diversity in terms of promoting cultural awareness, Reaffirming the Convention on Cultural Diversity of the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) as it highlights that cultural diversity is a cherished asset for the advancement and welfare of humanity at large and should be valued, especially in addressing the elimination of discrimination,

Noting the impact that the media has upon society and its ability to influence relations between all groups within society as seen in HE For She Campaign among many others,
Recognizing the report of the Human Rights Council on its twenty-second session which calls upon the need to develop and implement inclusive education policies that ensure equal access to education for persons belonging to national or ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities,

Keeping in mind culturally sensitive sustainable development is essential for the elimination of racial discrimination within emerging economies,

Endorsing the resolution 68/151, as it calls for the comprehensive implementation and follow-up of the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action, particularly the need to address the rights of highly vulnerable groups and ensure international respect for human rights,

Applauding the success of the United Nations Permanent Forum on Indigenous Peoples (UNFPII) in providing a venue for dialogue and sharing of best practices between Member States and indigenous peoples groups,

Promoting the resolution 61/295, the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, as it affirms the need to promote and protect the rights of indigenous populations, namely their right to development, while respecting their free, prior, and informed consent,

Cognizant of the obligation of Member States party to the ICERD and the additional burden this places upon developing states in its implementation,

Recalling Security Council resolution 2177, which emphasizes the impact that the Ebola outbreak in West Africa has had on human rights, in particularly the increased stigma and discrimination surrounding the disease,

1. Suggests improved cooperation between UNESCO and the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF) to invite increased dialogue between and within communities, with a particular focus on early childhood education, and including secondary and postsecondary education, focusing on the promotion of tolerance and respect between cultures, religions, and languages and to prevent discrimination;

2. Encourages the expansion of student and faculty exchange programs between developed and developing countries, that utilize partnerships between donors and regional development banks to increase development of educational human resources, expand access to and quality of education, and ensure that all peoples are able to fully engage in non-discriminatory education;

3. Urges member states to collaborate with the UNESCO Capacity Development For Education For All Programme to increase educational infrastructure development that is culturally sensitive and inclusive especially in regards to vulnerable populations;

4. Recommends that Member States of the General Assembly Third Committee to discuss the inclusion of culturally sensitive principles within curricula, in order to improve international efforts on the elimination of discrimination;

5. Invites Member States to cooperate with the United Nations Development Programme and the Umuganda Programme, which will provide a platform for community-based dialogue and exchanging best practices on addressing discrimination, to empower and include marginalized, local, and rural populations in decision-making processes and local development;

6. Endorses Member States and regional organizations to discuss solutions to promote economic equality through the UN Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues (UNPFII) particularly to:

   a. Provide minorities and indigenous peoples with skills training for entrepreneurship and ensure their full involvement in the economy; and
b. Encourage equal opportunity employment policies, such as the International Labour Organization’s Rural Workers Organization Convention, so that all people, regardless of their identity, have access to gainful employment;

7. Further promotes increased financial assistance to the UN Capital Development Fund by all interested parties to expand access to microfinance and related financing institutions to target extreme poverty as well as economically empower minority and vulnerable groups of various cultures, languages, and religions, particularly women and youth within these groups, through voluntary participation in accessing finance, and reduce their vulnerability to discrimination;

8. Encourages Member States and regional organizations to work through existing community center programs to focus on educational training in political procedure, national and international governmental and non-governmental organizations, and fundamental governance in order to further integrate marginalized groups into the political process;

9. Recommends, through the Economic and Social Council and in cooperation with the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR), the creation of a United Nations Permanent Forum on the Elimination of Racism, Xenophobia and Related Intolerances, modeled after the UNPFII, to facilitate discussion about these topics and provide a venue for the sharing of best practices and capacity-building with respect to implementation and follow-up procedures, in order to effectively align legislation with international standards;

10. Encourages Member States to welcome indigenous and marginalized peoples in legislative and representative bodies through:
   a. Dedicated programs with the focus of increasing involvement of indigenous and marginalized populations in decision-making processes and civil engagement;
   b. Encouraging the adoption of an individual benchmark of potential candidates to participate in representation based on each Member State’s population of indigenous persons;
   c. Submission of reports to the UN Permanent Forum on the Elimination of Racism, Xenophobia, and Related Intolerances every five years on the representation of indigenous peoples to ensure their participation in the legislation process;

11. Recommends that Member States encourage the inclusion of human rights-focused education in school curriculums, in collaboration with national human rights institutions and the OHCHR, as well as through discussion in the General Assembly Third Committee, which will be aimed toward the youth and raise awareness of all peoples on human rights and the importance of intercultural cooperation;

12. Further promotes the creation of the Learn Our Language Capacitation Program to be administered by the Committee on Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights, wherein volunteers with the relevant governmental organizations of each country shall provide language courses to migrants that are introducing themselves in a country with another language, so that they can overcome that obstacle and integrate more easily into the new society;

13. Endorses UNESCO’s International Fund for Cultural Diversity to focus on funding and facilitation of local and community-based events which celebrate the variety of cultures in Member States, including through the publicity of such events, to promote widespread awareness of other cultures and improve development of peaceful, multicultural societies throughout the international community;

14. Invites Member States to partner with UNESCO’s International Programme for the Development of Communication to develop and strengthen positive, anti-discriminatory, and inclusive media campaigns, through the types of media used in local areas, that promote cultural sensitivity and acceptance of all peoples as means to educate against racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerances;
15. Welcomes regional organizations to utilize the International Labour Organization’s (ILO) Decent Work Agenda to develop fair, equitable, and non-discriminatory labour and hiring practices in order to allow all peoples, particularly minorities and other vulnerable populations, to access beneficial employment opportunities and ensure their ability to contribute to economic development and economic prosperity in developing regions;

16. Urges Member States to partner with the ILO and UNESCO, with recommendations from the Human Rights Council, to create and implement programmes and workshops that promote vocational training for government workers, healthcare and educational professionals that is culturally sensitive and inclusive;

17. Further suggests the International Organization of Migration to cooperate with the UN High Commissioner for Refugees to assist in setting an international minimum standard of protection for nomadic groups, in order to attempt to limit discriminatory domestic legislation and seeks to face the lack of capacity to implement international human rights conventions at the national level;

18. Further endorses the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime to increase a focus on cultural sensitization in training of security sector personnel, including local or regional military and police, in order to ensure that access to justice and participation in the security sector is non-discriminatory and promotes peace between cultures and minority groups;

19. Further welcomes the implementation of inmate rehabilitation programs which focus on education so that former convicts may be reintegrated into the general populace and workforce, so as to reduce the disproportionate impact of racism on minorities in the job market, considering that a large percentage of inmates are minorities and are therefore more vulnerable to discrimination within society;

20. Endorses the idea of information sharing and regionally targeted research regarding techniques and actions to combat racism, xenophobia, and other related intolerances among Member States through the Vocalization of Ongoing Intolerances for the Cessation of Exclusion (VOICE) program, which:
   a. Will create and utilize pre-established advisory boards within international regions to ensure the promotion of information sharing, by:
      i. Strongly encouraging economically developed states to participate as leaders to assist in the creation of advisory boards;
      ii. Inviting advisory boards to implement surveying and direct observation of disadvantaged minority populations to gain relevant intelligence pertaining to how affected individuals can best be included politically, socially, and into the labor market within their specific regions;
      iii. Recommending a 1% increase in voluntary monetary contributions by Member States willing and able to provide funding or support for the creation of advisory boards;
   b. Will establish an international group consisting of representatives of ethnic and religious communities under the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, which:
      i. Promotes the sharing of ideas and experiences within and between regions and Member States to ensure that ideas, practices and techniques are shared;
      ii. Provide an open forum that is an extension of The General Assembly Third Committee, for all regions to freely discuss the situation or problems being faced within their borders that pertain to the issues at hand;
      iii. Enhance adaption of the implementation of all solutions towards the issues brought to the expert group from one region to the other;
   c. Will implement and adapt the various practices, techniques, and actions discussed within the Expert Group through the help and support of willing developed states that have an adequate amount of experience dealing with racial discrimination within their borders;
21. Encourages adoption of the concept of transparency between willing economically developed states and states still developing while approaching the idea of sharing information that will be beneficial in furthering talks amongst mutual parties, as well as continued promotion of the suggested quarterly report writing system as established by the OHCHR;

22. Further recommends the expansion of regional infrastructure networks by regional development banks, the International Bank on Reconstruction and Development, and willing and able Member States into rural and underserved areas to empower minority and excluded populations, promote social inclusion, and improve national service delivery, with respect for the specific rights and needs of indigenous populations and nomadic groups;

23. Urges the United Nations Development Programme to extend the duration and expand the capacity of funding to ensure that sustainable, culturally sensitive development is continued as countries emerge from least developed to less developed to ensure that they continue to emerge within the global economy;

24. Calls for increased capacity-building from the Special Rapporteur on Contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia, and related intolerance to Member States, especially developing countries and those lacking resources, in order to:
   a. Improve the implementation and universality of the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination’s recommendations, with respect for state sovereignty; and
   b. Promote the inclusion of regional human rights documents and commitments on the elimination of discrimination in national development plans and strategies;

25. Supports the creation of Ebola Education Workshops through the World Health Organization to spread awareness and information on the Ebola virus and its spread with particular emphasis on reducing discrimination against in both unaffected and affected regions.
The General Assembly Third Committee,

Taking note that under-developed countries lack the relevant solutions to address the importance of national and regional efforts to combat international dialogue and understanding,

Bearing in mind that the Millennial Development Goals noted the need to enhance available technologies, resolution 68/150 from the 68th session of the GA discusses the importance of education and health care and how they coincide with the need to eliminate racial discrimination,

Cognizant indigenous people make up five percent of the world’s population while making up fifteen percent of the world’s poorest in the last five centuries one-hundred and fifteen languages have been lost through modern assimilation,

Having considered that there is no blueprint for development and the necessity of having a flexible global agenda tailored to regional and national levels as recommended by the UN system task team on the post 2015 development agenda,

1. Calls upon Member States to promote socioeconomic development to educate citizens through technology, thus, opening lines of intercultural dialogue to promote understanding and equality in the modern world

Providing education and technology for minorities;

   a. Through several steps: Working cooperatively with minorities;
   b. Encouraging minorities to utilize the technology and education available;

2. Insist on providing the technological means for disadvantaged minorities to promote culture, nationalism and self-acceptance in a world that is homogenous through the possible means of:

   a. Radio for the purpose of inter-cultural dialogue between states and people;
   b. Solar powered lamps for electricity;
   c. Using to reverse osmosis to provide drinking water in areas where it is scarce;

3. Intends on teaching disadvantaged minorities in native tongues how to utilize technology in order to promote self-sufficiency;

   a. Taught to these minority groups by working directly side by side with them; to teach them how they operate;
   b. Utilized by these groups to the best of their abilities, in other words using it to promote cultural identity and self-acceptance in a world that is homogenous and marginalizing;

4. Encourages a combination of traditional media and new technology tailored to each individual countries specific needs.
